

Mrs. E'd Helena Wilhite
Page 3

Try something like this and see if it don't bring you a big increase of peace and contentment. In my opinion there is hardly anything else that the enemy of our souls dreads more than confidence - humble confidence in God. The lives of the saints abound with examples of this virtue. Perhaps no where more beautifully than in the example of St. Joseph with Mary, God's living Tabernacle seeking an abode wherein to give us Salvation. What an example of confidence it must have been to their thousand guardian angels - as Venerable Mary of Agreda was instructed to inform us, Mary had from the day of her Immaculate Conception. What an edification! And again what a surpassing reward that followed! What a HOLY NIGHT for them indeed! - a HOLY NIGHT, the positive dawn of humanity rescued.

There has been something else in my mind, however, that I wanted to bring to your consideration. How about proposing to adopt one or more little ones - of whom Jesus assures us: "What you have done for the least of my brethren, you have done to me", if E'd give the doctors a surprise and get well?

I find it always practical, especially in cases where all human scientific help is despaired of, to just turn to the divine author of all good - always solicitous to be asked for favors - and with all the confidence we can muster, propose something that we are assured is pleasing to Him if we be only spared --?, or be granted the booned favor. But, to even try to raise children for God and society is so manifestly pleasing to God - and this, whether they be procured by natural generation or by adoption (seemingly quite a matter of indifference to Him), that He has given a specially beautiful coloring to the love of those whose privilege it is to have become earnest faithful parents. So that quite appropriately the song of the Psalmist may be here also applied: "...O the depth of the riches of the wisdom and of the knowledge of God! How incomprehensible are His judgements and how unsearchable His ways!" (Rom. XI)