It is just about ten years now that a certain Rabbi Rosenwasser lamented to one of our fathers...the prevalence of atheism. The latter without a whisper, wrote (the R's finger on the corner of the tissue-paper) "If any good is to come from atheism -- in itself the climax of insanity -- ..." "Its going to force believers-in-God together." Hitting the desk, Rabbi exclaimed: "Thats Inspiration!

It is hard to reckon the extent of modern martyrdom the Church has suffered these several decades and probably less possible to surmise what seems still-shortly to follow, the judgment awaiting enemies of Truth as the glory reserved for those who will have persevered... suffering for justice, for Truth...
