God bless you My Dear Brother Pat.

I hope this finds you improving on the report received recently from Mildred in Chicago. I offered my holy Mass for you today and have been including you and yours in all my prayers and holy Masses.

I am really ashamed of myself that I write so very seldom. Still, when I am confident that my dear ones are in the grace of God -- keeping up the "good fight" and at the same time when I know so many languishing under their load of temptations -- so often with little or no faith -- I just feel I must do something to encourage and, like-rescue them. There are so many whose faith seems to be chilled and benumbed by materialism and forgetfulness of our primary purpose as rational creatures, viz; gratefully to recognize our greatest Benefactor - our God and Saviour.

I wrote a boyfriend of ours several months ago - Chris Adam - with whom we played and associated in our early boyhood, together with his little sisters, Lottie and Hattie; - poor youngsters! poorly instructed and left orphans at one of the most dangerous periods in life, just blooming into youth. I sent him badges of the Sacred Heart. He, too in his 80s wrote back appreciatively, in a way but seemed content with hardly any reference other than to material existence. "Lottie never married... Hattie did... and has three grown-up children..." He wrote also of his own family and grandchildren. Sorry I can't put my hand on his letter now.
